

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Provided are a digital television receiver in which a user on a digital television receiver side selects a program from among programs for changing an operation screen, which have undergone push-type distribution by being superposed on a broadcast wave, making it possible to customize a GUI by a simple operation, and a GUI changing method for the digital television receiver. The digital television receiver of the present invention includes: a television picture signal; a receiving unit for receiving a program for changing a GUI; an installing unit for selectively installing the program received by the receiving means; and a changing unit for executing the installed program to change the GUI.